Advice and information

Examples of how you might become dementia friendly are that your staff or volunteers have become Dementia Friends; you may have made changes to your premises to make it easier for people living with dementia to navigate around or you may be able to change your HR policies to support staff in the early stages of dementia.

Guides are available to help from the Alzheimer's Society website that can offer help.

Friendly
2017-2018

Groups, businesses and organisations have different levels of resources to support becoming dementia friendly, but the Alzheimer's Society says that being part of the community and passively supporting the initiative isn't enough. Your actions need to be reflective of the scale and scope of your group, business or organisation and be challenging but realistic. Include actions that have already been completed and timelines for any that are being planned, so these can be monitored.

Describe below how you are becoming dementia friendly.
